

The Industrial Scene

To many people industry is an eyesore, contaminating the air and the landscape.

To creative photographers there is unlimited potential to capture images of textures, shapes, patterns and of people who work in industry.

At sunrise or sunset, moody scenes abound in industrial areas, and the emissions of smoke and steam create fascinating shapes against the sky.

The security lights at night create an eerie atmosphere.

Railways have a wealth of images waiting to be captured by the creative photographer. Whether on the tracks or in the workshop there are wonderful patterns and designs to be captured.

Keep your eyes open and you will see beauty and style which is shunned by many people.

*Text and Images ©
Fran Cross*

